

PROJECT 'S'

The documentary "Project S" tells the story about the creation of a fantastic design and the enormous impact this may have on people.

Project S was the name Citroën used when they secretly worked on a super car, the SM. A fast, comfortable limousine with a unique design and technology.

Philosopher, poet and artist Robert Opron was primarily responsible for the design and reflects in our film on the creation of the SM and the power of a good design.

Talk show host Jay Leno is one of many people impacted by the SM and talks in great depth about his experiences and the role of cars in his life.

Other drivers from around the world talk about how their lives have changed since their first contact with the SM. For example, Sylvia Hathaway who is the first woman to pass the 200 miles/hour in a production car and still considers this a life changing moment, or Marlène Wolgensinger-Cotton who, as director "Competition Citroën", has sweet memories of the SM.

Historical archive footage of illustrious drivers such as Yves Montand, Romy Schneider and Johan Crujff illustrate the role of the car in the media and popular culture.

World-renowned D.O.P. Thomas Kist is responsible for the camerawork

The famous Dutch composer and bandleader Benjamin Herman specially composed a soundtrack which is already available on CD, Vinyl or download on Spotify. Our soundtrack received 4 star reviews in the Dutch quality press.

Our target is a worldwide distribution on television, but also other broadcasting possibilities like HBO, Netflix etc. This will be supported by premium international film festivals and possibly concerts with Benjamin Herman.

In short: This is a 45 minute documentary about passion for a car, for the SM.

A movie as never made before about a car. A must see for everyone.
